Firefighters battle Hanover home blaze

Officials believe fire started from unattended wood stove

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A blaze that firefighters think originated at an unattended wood stove in a garage led to a structure fire Saturday afternoon on Madison Avenue in Hanover.

The occupants had already evacuated the structure, located in the 100 block of Madison Avenue, by the time firefighters arrived on scene at approximately 2:03 p.m.

An investigation into the fire determined that fire coming from a wood stove initially went unnoticed, allowing the blaze to fully develop and spread. As the blaze grew in intensity, the fire nearly consumed the entire garage and was beginning to threaten surrounding structures.

"This is the hottest stage of any fire, thus making it the hardest stage of a fire to control," said Cory Thomas, public information liaison for the Hanover Township Fire Department.

Hanover Township responded initially but Chief Ron Kroger called on Kent Fire Department, Madison Township Fire Department and North Madison Fire Company 5 for mutual aide to gain control of the blaze before it could spread further.

Firefighters kept the fire from extending through the rest of the home or to nearby structures. Firefighters were able to save a significant portion of the structure with only radiant heat damage to a nearby home.

There were no injuries and Hanover Police and King's Daughter EMS assisted firefighters at the scene.

Sharer murder was 30 years ago today

Shanda Sharer

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Today marks the 30th anniversary of the shockingly brutal murder of a New Albany girl by four Madison teens on Jan. 11, 1992.

Shanda Renee Sharer, 12, was tortured and burned to death by the four teenage girls in an overnight ordeal that began on a Friday night and ended early Saturday morning with Sharer's body found later that day in a field near Madison.

The 1992 attack gained national attention and resulted in the convictions of Melinda Loveless, 16; Mary "Laurie" Tackett, 17; and Toni Lawrence and Hope Rippey, both 15.

A news story in The Madison Courier in 1992 described how the girls bound Sharer's wrists and ankles and beat her with an iron bar. Sharer was then placed in the trunk of the vehicle the girls were in and taken to another location in rural Jefferson County and beaten again. Sharer was pulled out of the trunk

The cure for writer's block

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I used to write every day — mostly poems but also essays. I really want to get back into it, but my motivation has waned. When I used to write every day, I was deeply depressed, and writing was an outlet, a stress reliever. I still want to write, but I never seem able to get myself to actually put pen to paper. I don't want to believe that I have to be depressed in order to write. I know I'm also a good writer when I'm not depressed. I think that part of the problem is I'm scared of writing something bad, thinking that if I can't write a beautiful first draft, there's no point in writing at all. (Obviously, that's a rather toxic mindset.) Do you have any tips for how I could discipline myself to actually write something while not worrying about the outcome? — Wrestling a Writing Rut

Dear Wrestling a Writing Rut: Every writer intimately knows the feelings you describe, including yours truly. Here are a few points to keep in mind.

Deadlines are your friend. If columns weren't due weekly, I would never finish them. I know it can be hard to meet self-imposed deadlines. One way to get external ones is to join a writing group or to take a writing class online or through a local college.

Perfectionism equals paralysis. Fortunately, the deadlines should help with this, too. When something is due, you have to make peace with the fact that it's not perfect. Done is better than perfect.

Confront the fear of failure by writing a deliberately crummy story. Read it back to yourself. See that the world did not end because you wrote something lackluster. This might also help to infuse some levity into your practice, which can be wind beneath the creative wings.

"Gamify" the process. Look for writing prompts online. Set a kitchen timer, and don't pick up your pen until it dings, no matter what you're writing.

Lastly, remember that the only way to really fail is to not try. So get writing.

Dear Annie: I'm a teenage boy. My mom hates that I'm gay. She says that the whole family is disappointed in me. But it's only my dad's side of the family who hates me for it. My mom can't accept me for me.

I try to ignore her, but it will always be there. I've started drinking to block out the memories, but that only works for a little while. I have feelings of hatred toward her, but I care about her, too. I don't know what to do. I believe that God made me this way. I feel so depressed and full of rage. — Black Sheep

Dear Black Sheep: You are not alone. Please reach out to The Trevor Project, a wonderful organization dedicated to supporting and saving the lives of LGBTQ youth. You can call its hotline anytime at 866-488-7386. If you'd prefer to text, you can text "START" to 678678 between 3 p.m. and 10 p.m. Eastern time, or during those same hours, you can instant message with a counselor on the group's website, https://www.thetrevorproject.org.

Going mobile

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: When I was 10, I began asking for a phone. Every kid in my class had one, and I was being left out and bullied because I was the only kid without one. Now, three years later, I finally have a phone!

But my mom has restricted my access to it; I can use my phone only when she says so. I'm not allowed to text my friends — even though it's the only way to keep in touch now that we aren't in any of the same classes. The same applies to social media. No Instagram or Snapchat. My mom doesn't love technology, and she doesn't understand that this is the only way to keep in touch. Is she right that I'm being unreasonable? Please help! — Odd Girl Out

Dear Odd Girl Out: I have no doubt that she has your best interests at heart and is trying to protect you from some of the very real dangers that social media and even text messaging can have. Nonetheless, technology is something that not only is here to stay but is going to become even more present in our lives. Have a conversation with your mother about this, and try to understand her reasons for keeping you off social media.

Perhaps once you have that conversation, you will better understand why she is hesitant and you two can come up with a compromise, such as putting privacy settings in place, restricting certain features and ensuring that the social media sites know your age.

Dear Annie: I've been reading letters from people complaining and/or asking about what to do about not receiving thank-you acknowledgments. Here is the other side of that dilemma. What does one do when receiving gifts that for whatever reason are unfortunate picks for the receiver? I feel as if I'm lying when I say "thank you." I've tried not sending a thank-you, but that felt icky and did not work. — You Shouldn't Have

Dear You Shouldn't Have: Tell the gift-givers that you've appreciated all their gifts over the years but decided to ask for donations in your name to your favorite charity instead of physical presents. That's something you can all feel good about.

Dear Annie: I have a resource for "Heartbroken Sibling," whose sister was in a car accident and is now living with a traumatic brain injury. I would encourage "Heartbroken Sibling" to look into LoveYourBrain, an organization created by former professional snowboarder Kevin Pearce. After Pearce sustained a nearly fatal brain injury, he and his brother Adam started LoveYourBrain to create a community of survivors of traumatic brain injuries and their caregivers. The organization empowers survivors to take their healing into their own hands and has many helpful resources and workshops that could bring peace, new meaning and even healing to "Heartbroken Sibling" and his/her sister's lives. — Reframe Your Mindset

Dear Reframe Your Mindset: Thank you for letting me know about LoveYourBrain. It seems to be a wonderful resource. Readers can find out more at http://www.loveyourbrain.com.

Roberts leaving Chamber post

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Emilee Roberts has resigned as executive director of the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce after two years in the position.

Emilee Roberts

"It has been a tremendous honor to serve the Madison area community over the past year, and this decision did not come lightly," said Roberts. "It is truly bittersweet to leave this organization and this community, as I certainly love it and will miss it. A personal thank you to the entire board, ambassador team, community leaders and Chamber members for their guidance and support."

Roberts said she is proud of the work completed at the Madison Area Chamber as it was a true team effort. "We were able to grow our events, even in the midst of COVID; we worked to have more connection, retention, and visibility for the Chamber, as well as the members we serve; and we were able to create a working succession plan and documentation to make sure the organization was internally successful. This wouldn't have been possible without the staff, board, ambassadors, Chamber members, and community. I hope it is something we can all be proud of."

A native of Terre Haute, Roberts has accepted a position as executive director of a non-profit organization in the Terre Haute area.

A 2014 graduate of Hanover College, Roberts is a former program director of Girls Inc. of Jefferson County for three years until 2017 when she left for Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology, first as assistant director of Residence Life and later as assistant director of Student and Community Engagement. She has served as the Chamber's executive director since September of 2020.

"Emilee has been a true joy to work with and has rekindled what I believe to be the life source of the Chamber, our local businesses, members, and bringing the spotlight to them," board member Angela Record said. "We appreciate the dedication, commitment, and passion she has personally displayed within this community and on behalf of the Chamber. She has been a great leader for this organization, and she will be missed."

A search is now underway by the Chamber for a new executive director.

The public may nominate individuals and businesses for the following categories: Business of the Year, Small Business Person of the Year, Non-Profit Organization of the Year, Jeff Garrett Community Service Award and Jefferson County Emerging Leader Award Nomination forms can be found at the Chamber office, 301 E. Main Street, calling the Chamber at 812-265-3135, or at madisonindiana.com/award-nominations.

Trimble scheduled for KYTC regional driver licensing

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Trimble County is slated to be among the next group of counties in Kentucky that will transition to a new, secure driver-licensing model the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet says will give Kentuckians more choices and modern services.

The traditional issuance system of licenses and permits initiated at the Office of Circuit Court Clerk in each Kentucky county is being phased out and replaced by a network of KYTC Driver Licensing Regional Offices located across the state, a release from the KYTC said. A total of 20 regional offices have been opened statewide to date, with more to come, and Trimble County is scheduled to make the change on Jan. 27.

Residents of counties making the transition may renew or apply for a REAL ID or new standard card version of driver license, learner permit, commercial driver license, or ID card at any KYTC Driver Licensing Regional Office.

Applicants are encouraged to find a location and make an appointment online — the nearest locations to Trimble are Burlington in northern Kentucky, Frankfort and three locations in Louisville — which can be done at drive.ky.gov. However, periodic "Pop-up Driver Licensing" visits will be made to counties without a regional office to offer on-site application and renewal services.

Driver Licensing Regional Offices will offer:

- Online appointment scheduling. Walk-in customers are still welcome.
- A choice between a REAL ID and a new standard card version. Both feature security upgrades and are available with a choice of four-year or eight-year expiration. (Eight years for all CDLs.)

- Service at any regional office, regardless of customer's county of residence.

License applicants receive a temporary identification document at the end of the transaction for use until the permanent card arrives by mail at their home address. This reduces the wait time for printing credentials during visits and improves security by eliminating in-office card production machinery.

All four teens were sentenced to prison with Loveless, who was from New Albany at the time of the attack, the last of the four to be paroled when she was released on Sept. 5, 2019. Loveless was described at the time as the ringleader in the murder of Sharer. She had pleaded guilty to murder and was sentenced to 60 years in prison.

COUNCIL

Last week, the council put up both Rampy and Republican Chatham for the position with Rampy retaining the post 4-3 with, Republicans Carla Krebs and Jim Bartlett joining Rampy and Dan Dattilo in the majority and Republicans Patrick Thevenow, Lucy Dattilo and Chatham voting in the minority.

Mayor Bob Courtney and the Council also approved several appointments in other housekeeping duties to start the year. Courtney named Shane Brunner and I'easha Cornelius to the Human Relations Commission with consent of council. The Council reappointed Bill Hensler and Mark Goley to the Revolving Loan Committee.

Courtney also noted that in appointments made earlier in the week, Emilee Roberts was renamed to the Cable Advisory Board and Madison Police reappointed Dave Adams as their representative on the city's Police Merit Board. Roberts' position will likely have to be filled again since she resigned her job as executive director of the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce and will be moving to the Terre Haute area.

In other business:

Last week, the council put up both Katie Rampy and Republican Curtis Chatham for the position with Rampy retaining the post 4-3 with, Republicans Carla Krebs and Jim Bartlett joining Rampy and Dan Dattilo in the majority and Republicans Patrick Thevenow, Lucy Dattilo and Chatham voting in the minority.

Adams reported to the council on behalf of the Salvation Army that more volunteers are needed to staff its warming shelter for the city's homeless population. Adams said with cold weather forecast for the area last week and part of this week, the shelter would be open to provide a meal and warm place to sleep during frigid nighttime hours.

He said becoming a volunteer has gotten easier than when the shelter was being reorganized last year and that only about two hours of training — available by video online — is required.

ELECTION

even numbered years. The ordinance cites Indiana code 3-5-3-11 that states "a year in which a town election coincides with a general election, the county election board may not assess the town for the cost of the election." The ordinance cites that cost savings as the counci's reason for adopting the change.

Following the 2019 election for the town council district and clerk-treasurer, the ordinance established that those officials would serve three-year terms until the 2022 election could align those seats in the same year that the at-large seats are up for election.

The at-large seats didn't exist prior to 2003 with the three district seats making up the entire Hanover town council. When the at-large seats were created, Margaret Seifert, town council president at the time, proposed staggering the terms by having the new at-large council members serve three years until those positions were next up for election in 2006, and then every four years thereafter, according to the Nov. 12, 2002 edition of The Madison Courier. And that's what the council decided to do, thus putting the at-large seat elections and district seat elections in different calendar years.

Debbie Kroger, first elected to the town council in 1999, was on the board at the time, and said the decision to stagger the terms was made to avoid the possibility of having a total changeover of council members by always having some returning members during the transition.

Kroger thinks the decision the town council made in 2018 "was a bad decision."

After 16 years on the council, she wasn't on the board at the time of that vote because she did not seek office in 2015 and wasn't on the council when it voted on the ordinance to change the year of the town council district and clerk-treasurer offices in 2018. Kroger returned to the town council after running and being elected again in 2019.

The election-year change was first mentioned at the Aug. 21, 2018, council meeting when Denise Buxton, serving then as board president, asked about the possibility. Devon Sharpe, attorney for the town, asked if that was something the board would like to do, and Buxton and board member Treva Shelton expressed that it would be worthwhile to save the town money spent on the extra election.

Sharpe drafted an ordinance with a first reading held at the Sept. 19, 2018 meeting, a second reading at the Oct. 2, 2018 meeting and approval following the third reading at the Oct. 16, 2018 meeting. Board members Kathi Scroggins and Doug Hamilton joined Buxton and Shelton in a unanimous approval. Kenny Garrett, the current board president, was serving on the council at the time, but was not at that Oct. 16 meeting and did not vote on the ordinance.

Kroger said the at-large seats were added in 2003 because there was a time when the board was having trouble getting a quorum with just three board members because two members were often absent. She said the thought was that by increasing the board to five members might alleviate that issue.

The at-large seats were approved in a referendum in the 2002 general election by 81% of Hanover's voters. After the referendum, the town council moved forward and sought candidates with the council appointing two — Charles Spitler and Jeffery Fant — to serve in the new at-large seats, and they were sworn into office in January 2003.

The current Hanover Town Council members include Shelton in District 1, Scroggins in District 2, Kroger in District 3, and Garrett and Buxton as at-large members. Keith Mefford is the town's clerk-treasurer. Kroger and Shelton both have already filed for re-election.

Southwestern overcomes early fouls to beat Trimble County

David Campbell

Southwestern's Colton Cloud (4) shoots between Trimble County defenders Hunter Kelly (20) and Ethan Horn (5) during the Rebels' win Saturday in Bedford, Kentucky.

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern started Saturday's game from behind thanks to a pre-game technical foul, gave up six points on free throws over the first 34 seconds, and trailed by one at the end of the first quarter.

But the Rebels reversed all that in the second quarter with a 12-0 opening burst and never looked back, rolling to a 78-66 win over Trimble County in boys basketball Saturday in Bedford.

Southwestern led by 26 points at one point in the third quarter and still had a 21-point advantage with just five minutes to play before Rebel coach Zac Nussbaum called off the dogs and Trimble closed the game on a 17-8 run for the final margin.

Despite Trimble's late run, Nussbaum was happy with the way his team responded after the rough start.

"We have got to find a way to have a little bit quicker starts. I'm tired of having to make adjustments and get things going," Nussbaum said. "But I was proud of our kids for how they responded to the initial surge that Trimble County came out with. Obviously, we had to adjust a little bit to how the game was called. Not saying that it was bad, I'm just saying how it was called. As players you always discuss that you have to adjust to it and I like how our boys did a good job of that."

Southwestern (7-4) was assessed a technical foul for hanging on the rim during pregame warmups and Dalton Penick staked Trimble to a 2-0 lead without a second coming off the clock. Tate Ogburn and James Thomas Wilcoxson each then drew fouls and both hit two free throws as the Raiders led 6-0 34 seconds into the game.

The early free throws were part of a trend. A total of 17 free throws were shot in the first quarter alone and Trimble attempted 20 by halftime. But those attempts couldn't hold back Southwestern for long.

After Jamison Lewis scored two points for Southwestern — at the free-throw line of course — Trimble pushed its early lead to 8-2 on a basket by Hunter Kelly. The Rebels responded with a 12-4 run to take a 14-12 lead, but a free throw by Penick and a basket by Ethan Horn gave Trimble a 15-14 lead at the quarter break.

But theSouthwestern run was a harbinger of what was to come. Ramping up its defensive pressure, and methodically picking apart Trimble on offense, the Rebels opened the second quarter with a 12-0 run that eventually ballooned to a 23-10 stretch that saw Southwestern go ahead 37-25 at halftime and never look back.

"It's a game of spurts and we decided to have some some mental lapses there," Trimble coach Marcus Mumphrey said.

Scottsburg dominates at the line to beat Madison 58-54

Cubs regroup to beat Charlestown on Saturday

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

SCOTTSBURG — Not too many coaches can smile after watching their team drop a contest on the road against a bitter rival. But considering what the Cubs nearly overcame Friday, Madison head coach Adam Stotts felt like he had reason to be happy.

Madison was outscored 18-2 at the free-throw line and didn't get a single point from its leading scorer until the fourth quarter but still battled Scottsburg down to the wire before falling 58-54 on Friday.

Sure, it wasn't a win, but all things considered, Stotts was pleased with the outcome.

"I came in a locker room smiling and it was weird because my guys are beating themselves up. This is the second time in two weeks that we've played Scottsburg and we have proven that they're not 20 points better than us," Stotts said. "I thought we could have won if we used all of our stuff, but we wanted to save some stuff for sectionals. So we really didn't throw everything out that we had and then for us to come here and show that we can compete and not only compete but come back, I'm excited. We shot two free throws and now here we are in a four-point game against one of the best teams in the area."

Madison, which had beaten Scottsburg in double-overtime at home during the Jefferson County Invitational Tournament, led 17-15 after the first quarter of Friday's game but trailed most of the night. Scottsburg built a 15-point lead (46-31) early in the fourth quarter and appeared to be ready to cruise to the win when the Cubs righted themselves and closed the contest on a tear.

Junior Kaden Oliver, who came into the game averaging over 22 points per game, was held scoreless through three quarters as Scottsburg concentrated all of its defensive effort on stopping him. Jackson Lynch and Jackson Falconberry made up for the lack of points over the first three quarters, but Oliver took it upon himself in the fourth to bring the Cubs back.

It was Oliver's short jumper with a hand in his face early in the fourth that started the comeback. Over the final 6:30 of the game, Madison outscored the Warriors 23-12 and may very well have won the game had it been able to get to the free-throw line.

Madison averages nearly 20 free throw attempts per game but didn't go to the line until Falconberry hit a pair of free throws with four seconds left to close the gap to four.

Scottsburg, meanwhile, didn't have such worries. The Warriors went to the line 24 times — hitting 18 — and made the most of those opportunities, hitting 10-of-12 in the fourth quarter to keep the Cubs at bay.

Despite the tilted advantage in free throws, Stotts wasn't going to pin the loss on the refs.

"I really respect those refs. They heard me all night and they talked to me. A lot of refs won't do that. But it is hard to win when you're shooting only two free throws," Stotts said. "But we have to play through it. That's going to happen on the road and you have to expect it."

Lynch finished with a career-high 17 points to lead Madison, which shot 10% higher from the field than Scottsburg — 49% to 39% — led by Falconberry's double-double of 16 points and 13 rebounds while Oliver scored nine and Henry Grote had eight.

Things went much more smoothly for Madison on Saturday, which jumped out a big lead early and never looked back in a 67-46 win over Charlestown at home.

The Cubs led 19-15 after the first quarter and stretched that out to 37-26 by halftime. Madison ended up winning every quarter to pull away for the win.

Oliver scored 23 points while Falconberry had 11 points and Grote and Quincy Reynolds each scored eight.

Madison, now 5-7 on the season, hosts Lawrenceburg on Friday in its only game this week.

Scroggins, a sophomore, was deadly from the outside, hitting 6-of-9 3-point attempts. She also pulled down six rebounds.

"We've been waiting to see the team we see in practice show up in the game," Southwestern coach Brian Crank said. "They played well today and it was great to see."

Scroggins hit three of her treys in the third quarter as Southwestern built a 39-27 lead. The Rebels then iced the game at the free-throw line in the fourth, going 12-of-16 overall with sophomore Ashley Fulton doing most of the damage by sinking all eight of her attempts in the frame.

Fulton finished with 17 points and was 14-for-17 at the line overall. Emma Long had 14 points and 11 rebounds and Syrenia Hardy had five points and five assists.

Lady Cubs streak snapped by Charlestown

BY JORDAN BEAR

Madison's offense went silent and the Cubs' six-game win streak came to an end on a 39-26 loss to Charlestown at home in girls basketball Friday.

Madison had not lost a game since Dec. 4 — and had taken down some titans along the way including then-Class 2A No. 1 Winchester — but despite a stellar defensive performance, the Cubs couldn't muster the points to keep their win streak going.

"Mentally we just weren't ready to play and that's disappointing," Madison coach Sonja Bowyer said. "It's the first time being at home in a while, we've been playing so well and playing hard, it's just disappointing what happened tonight."

Neither team had good looks at the basket early on as both played extremely aggressive defense, resulting in Charlestown holding an 8-5 lead after one quarter. It wasn't much better in the second quarter as both teams were locked in defensively with Nipper nailing a 3-pointer at the buzzer to give the Pirates a six-point halftime lead.

The two teams scored 10 points each in the third so Madison entered the fourth still trailing by six at 27-21. But the Cubs went scoreless the first five minutes of the final period and managed only one field goal total in the fourth quarter to allowed the Pirates to pull away to a 39-26 victory.

"I was really happy with our defensive effort, because we really kept most of their offense in check," Bowyer said. "We need to make shots. It's that simple. We had times today where I thought we had good looks but then we'd pass them up. We just were out of sync, and going forward we have to fix that."

Cam Cahall scored 10 points to lead Madison while Taylor Lynch and Casey Dyer scored seven points each. Nipper led Charlestown with 12 points.

The Cubs are now 10-6 on the season and it doesn't get any easier with a road game at Class 3A No. 1 defending state champion Silver Creek tonight. Another sectional opponent, Corydon, awaits on Saturday.

"January is always a tough month. We've playing good teams, sectional teams, and are getting ready for the postseason," Bowyer said. "We've beaten some really good teams and we know we're capable of beating anyone. Hopefully we'll come out ready to go for Tuesday."

Short-handed Cubs go 2-2 at Shadday Invitational

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison wrestling competed short-handed but the Cubs still pulled off a pair of victories in its own Nick Shadday Memorial Invitational Saturday at home.

The Cubs were missing five starters due to various reasons but still defeated Scottsburg 44-27 and Switzerland County 58-6 but lost to Southport 43-28 and Columbus North 52-24.

"We saw some strong individual performances today. We had five starters out but still closed the gap with Southport from the first time we faced them," Madison coach Van Skinner said. "We have a week to heal up and see if we can get back to 100%."

Eli Stewart (120/126 pounds), Noah Burkhardt (145) and Van Skinner (195) each won all four of their matches on the day, the latter improving his record to 38-1. Danny Mack (106) and Taytem Anderson (182) were each 3-1, Jake Dyer (113), Tazman Shipley (138) and Travon Resendiz (170) each went 2-2, and Trenton Bivens (132), Brayden Richards (152) and Cameron Wall (160) were each 1-3.

No complete results for Switzerland County were available, but against Madison, Gabe Rose (138) picked up a win while Chazz Hartley (120) and Bryson Reynolds (152) each suffered losses.

Madison, now 27-9 on the season, doesn't compete again until Jan. 20 when the Cubs travel to New Washington. Switzerland hosts Southwestern today and competes in the Southern Indiana Wrestling Conference championships at Southwestern on Saturday.

Madison's Ally Zuckschwerdt qualified for the Indiana High School Girls Wrestling Association State Finals with a third-place finish in the regional at Edgewood on Friday.

Zuckschwerdt knocked off two wrestlers ranked in the top five to finish third at 145 pounds. She will compete in the state finals on Friday at Kokomo.

Jaguars clown Colts 26-11, prevent Indy from making playoffs

BY MARK LONG
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The Indianapolis Colts got clowned in Jacksonville. This one was more embarrassing than any other loss to the Jaguars, too.

Indy badly botched a chance to secure an AFC wild-card spot with a 26-11 loss to Jacksonville on Sunday in the "clown game," the team's seventh consecutive road loss to the Jaguars.

A debacle few saw coming left the Colts (9-8) with an outside shot at making the playoffs for the third time in four years, but those slim hopes ended when Pittsburgh beat Baltimore in overtime. Now, Indy returns home with a two-game skid and facing a long offseason that doesn't even include a first-round draft pick.

The Jaguars (3-14), meanwhile, got a much-needed celebration that ended an eight-game losing streak. And they still managed to lock up the No. 1 pick for a second straight season.

"Feels good to end on a high note after all this turmoil that we went through the whole season," Jaguars defensive end Dawuane Smoot said. "A lot of distractions, a lot of things. It's good to just get back in and really just get that W."

NFL rushing champion Jonathan Taylor was held to 77 yards, Carson Wentz was sacked six times and turned the ball over twice — leading to 10 points — and Indy did little to stop the usually clawless and often clueless Jaguars.

"Never expect to be sitting here having this moment right now, not like this," Indy coach Frank Reich said.

The Colts looked more like the ones who should have been decked out in giant bow ties, face paint and colorful wigs and suspenders. With a playoff berth on the line for the second time in eight days, Indianapolis was a no-show on an 80-degree day in Jacksonville.

The 15-point outcome could have been a bigger blowout had the Jags scored touchdowns instead of settling for two chip-shot field goals from inside the 5-yard line.

"Oh, man, it was huge," Jags cornerback Shaquill Griffin said. "We're not sure what's going to happen with the staff, the coaches, the players, but understand you've got one more chance to put it on tape. Leave no doubt, because you never want to be that guy leaving the season saying, 'Man, I just wish this play I would have did a little bit more.'

"You don't want to go into the offseason like that. It will haunt you forever."

This one will haunt the Colts, who finished with 233 yards. It was their lowest total since getting 205 at New Orleans in December 2019.

Jaguars rookie Trevor Lawrence capped his best game with an incredible play late in the third quarter. He kept a high snap from going over his head, gathered it, rolled right to evade an unblocked defender and then delivered a perfect pass to Marvin Jones in the back of the end zone for a 2-yard score.

Lawrence completed 23 of 32 passes for 223 yards and two touchdowns, his first game with multiple TD passes since the season opener.

"I really wanted to finish the year off with confidence," Lawrence said.

His performance gave disgruntled Jaguars fans hope for the future, even the ones dressed as clowns.

Only a few dozen fans — a couple hundred at most — wore clown attire to protest owner Shad Khan's decision to keep general manager Trent Baalke. But their message became clear when one woman not wearing any clown gear was selected to answer a trivia challenge on the stadium big screens. Instead of choosing answers A, B or C, she responded "D, fire Baalke," and cheers and chants erupted around TIAA Bank Field.

A plane flew a "#Klowntown banner" around the stadium before the game. One fan held a "Trent Baalke kicked me" sign. Another sign directed at Khan and players read, "It's not you. It's Baalke."

Titans get AFC's No. 1 seed; Colts' loss helps Steelers

BY TERESA M. WALKER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

The AFC playoffs will be running through Music City, and the Tennessee Titans should have Derrick Henry back for their first game this postseason.

The Tennessee Titans, who used an NFL-high 91 players for the most ever in a non-strike season, clinched their first No. 1 seed since 2008 and third overall. They needed only a win Sunday, though they made it interesting before holding off the team that replaced them in Houston 28-25 to clinch the AFC's top spot.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel noted nobody hands out T-shirts and hats for clinching the top seed.

"We understand we're in the Elite Eight," Vrabel said. "We've moved onto the second round of the playoffs without having to play a playoff game."

This postseason will feature seven teams who missed the playoffs last season: Arizona, Cincinnati, Dallas, New England, Philadelphia, San Francisco and the Las Vegas Raiders, who clinched their berth in the regular season's final game. It wound up a 35-32 overtime thriller over the Chargers when a tie would've put both in.

"We knew no matter what we didn't want a tie," Raiders quarterback Derek Carr said. "We wanted to win the football game."

The Chiefs (12-5) needed the Titans to lose to clinch the AFC's top seed. The Titans' win locked Kansas City in the No. 2 seed thanks to Tennessee (12-5) holding the tiebreaker after beating the Chiefs 27-3 on Oct. 24 in Nashville. Kansas City will host Pittsburgh on Sunday night in the wild-card round.

Only the Green Bay Packers had their playoff seeding set as the NFC's No. 1 seed going into the NFL's final week of the regular season.

The Indianapolis Colts came in on a roll with seven Pro Bowl players needing only to beat Jacksonville to reach the playoffs. Instead, the Colts blew a wild-card berth by losing their seventh straight road game to the Jaguars 26-11.

Browns close season with 21-16 win over Burrow-less Bengals

BY TOM WITHERS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — Joe Burrow skipped Cincinnati's last trip of the regular season. He and the Bengals have reservations to go somewhere more special — the playoffs.

Case Keenum got his second win while filling in for Baker Mayfield on Sunday as the Cleveland Browns ended their dismal season with a 21-16 win over the Bengals, who left Burrow at home and played their backups ahead of next weekend's wild-card round game against Las Vegas in Cincinnati on Saturday to open the playoffs.

Burrow stayed back to rest a sore right knee, so the Bengals' star quarterback, who took Cincinnati from worst to first in his second season, would be as healthy as possible for his first postseason appearance.

"We finished the season on a really good note and with a lot of confidence," coach Zac Taylor said. "These (playoff) games are special. You've earned this opportunity, and it's the best versus the best.

"Our guys are going to be ready for it."

Keenum threw touchdown passes to Jarvis Landry and Demetric Felton as the Browns (8-9) completed a sweep of the surprising AFC North champions.

D'Ernest Johnson rushed for 123 yards and a score, and star running back Nick Chubb only had nine carries and finished the season with with 1,259 yards.

Keenum, who replaced Mayfield and beat Denver earlier this season, connected with Landry on a 26-yard scoring pass in the first quarter. He later dumped a pass to Felton, who weaved his way to the end zone to make it 21-10.

Meanwhile, the Bengals (10-7) played their "B" team. Burrow stayed in Cincinnati for treatment and Taylor sat several other starters.

"No perfect decision there," Taylor said when asked why he mostly his sat skill-position players. "We felt like we needed to be healthy next week. There were so many things out of our control with the seedings at stake that we felt it was better to rest them."

Burrow said he would have played if there was more on the line, but Taylor wasn't taking any chances and started Brandon Allen, who threw a 4-yard TD pass to Chris Evans with 2:26 left.

The Bengals also sat wide receiver Tee Higgins, and running back Joe Mixon was out after testing positive for COVID-19 earlier this week.

Bengals star rookie receiver Ja'Marr Chase only played two series, and caught two passes for 26 yards.

"We feel good right now," Chase said. "Everybody is feeling good, getting back on their feet. Everybody is getting healthy. You know, staying prepared. So we're just getting ready for the upcoming game we've got at home."
